GO!

Working locum tenens offers numerous advantages.

Hit the road

You've been working hard for years. Have you missed opportunities to travel? Locums tenens work provides a plethora of unique opportunities to see the country.

Take the slow lane for awhile

- Locums providers are often needed in rural areas, and the slower pace offers the chance to really hone your skills.
- If you require a steady income but can't commit to permanent work, locum tenens may be your answer.

Or take the fast lane

Get the opportunity to work at some of the most prestigious healthcare systems and practice alongside the best physicians in the industry.

"Test-drive" different settings

Many providers labor for years in a practice setting that isn't quite the right fit, but as a locums provider you can try out different practice options and discover what works best for you. In a short time, you could experience the inner workings of a small practice, a rural hospital, a community clinic or all of the above.

Floor it! (Your earning potential that is.)

- Locum tenens pay is typically higher than permanent positions. In addition to your base pay, your travel, lodging and malpractice insurance are also covered.
- Choose where you want to go, and set your own priorities. If you're interested in the highest-paying contracts, give those parameters to your recruiter and they'll make it happen.
